

PETER BAINES INTRODUCTION

Peter Baines will tell you that he spent his 22 years working in the forensic area of the NSW Police providing 'answers to questions'. The questions aren't your normal ones though because they routinely concerned death and destruction on a fairly large level. He worked in Bali after the bombings, Thailand after the Boxing Day Tsunami and spent time advising Interpol and the UN on capacity building around leadership and counter terrorism.

These days he says that he is still providing answers, but the questions are around providing homes for kids who have lost their parents and how you make all of that sustainable. He also believes that the lessons apply to individuals as much as they do to organizations. Please welcome Peter Baines.
