

Saul Eslake

// A Global Economy

"Saul Eslake has that rare ability to condense complex issues into understandable and meaningful summaries"

Bank of Tokyo-Mitsubishi

Biography

As the ANZ's chief 'number-cruncher' for nearly 14 years, it's been Saul Eslake's job to look at vast reams of economic data, and make sense of it. He has a knack for explaining economics in terms mere mortals can understand, which is why he's always in such high demand as a speaker and commentator. Saul Eslake joined the Grattan Institute, a newly established 'think tank' affiliated with the University of Melbourne in August 2009. He also undertakes a range of speaking, writing and consulting engagements. Prior to joining the Grattan Institute, Saul Eslake was for 14 years Chief Economist of the Australia & New Zealand Banking Group Ltd (ANZ), one of Australia's 'big four' commercial banks, and one with a sizeable presence in Asia. In that role he became one of Australia's most widely recognized economic analysts and commentators.

Programs

- How Australia survived the Global Financial Crisis (while others didn't)
- China: The Jade Dragon of Opportunity
- What's on the Horizon for the Australian Economy
- The 'Big Picture' for the Australian residential property market
- The importance of growth to Australia's long-term future
- The rise of India and Asia - and what it means for Australia
- Long Term Prospects of a Global economy

Past Clients

Telstra, Morgan and Banks, Australian Institute of Company Directors, Australian Stock Exchange, Harvey Norman, Coates Hire Limited, The Conference Board—New York, Bank of Tokyo.

VIDEO

WEBSITE